THE BRITISH ARE COMING!

Stephen Southcott is the kind of chap who appreciates raw American horsepower. Much of the world agrees with his views on this subject. Mustangs are found the world over. Stephen calls Kent, England home - and so does his 1973 Mach 1. That's a 351 Cleveland V-8 delivering the ponies.

REALIZING AN AMERICAN DREAM IN - PUERTO RICO

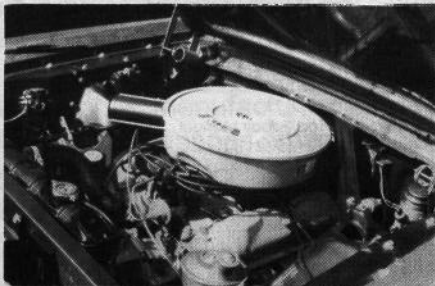

One place we never expected to find a pristine 1968 California Special was on an offshore island, so to speak.. Puerto Rico is indeed the shining star of the Caribbean, especially since this GT/CS came to town. Luis Zamot of Levittown (yes, Levittown), Puerto Rico doesn't mind tooling about in this California transplant one bit. Originally sold new in Los Angeles, Luis' GT/CS sports 289 two-barrel power, C4 Cruise-O-Matic, styled steel wheels with GT caps, dual exhausts, and a glistening Candyapple Red finish.

A white vinyl top, tinted glass, power steering and brakes, console and head rests round out the list of desirable assets. We'll glad to see the Mustang spirit in all corners of the globe - especially way down south in the beautiful Carribean.

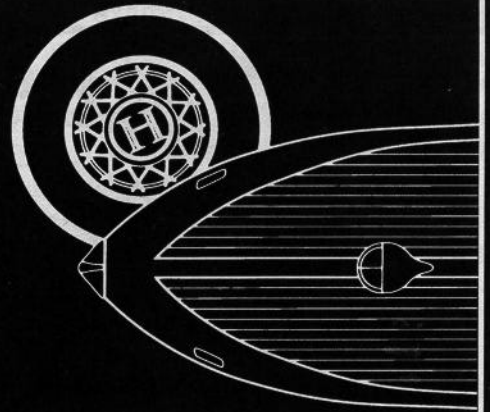

PITTSBURGH PRANCER

The Mustang movement is especially strong in Pennsylvania. We see it time and time again in examples like this '64 1/2 convertible. Robert Sosovicka brings this one out to the local car cruises and shows common in the Keystone State during those warm summer months. That's Rangoon Red Deltron with clear coat. Did you notice the oil filler location on the 260-2V below?
