Director Installation Dinner

Your 1998 Mustang Club of America officers and Board of Directors.

Each year the Mustang Club of America installs new members to the Board of Directors. Officers are installed every other year. Always held the third or fourth weekend in January, a dinner is held in the Atlanta area to officially welcome the newest members of the gang that oversees the running of this international organization.

This year the event took place at the Atlanta Marriott Gwinnett Place hotel on January 17. Sue Osborn made all the arrangements from selecting the site, the choice of delicious entrees, to the cow or chicken stickers on the name tags to help hotel staff distinguish those who ordered a beef dish from the those who preferred chicken.

A new twist was added for the 1998 edition as new directors met with officers and committee chairs earlier in the afternoon to learn more about how the club operates and what is expected of them. This also gave those directors an opportunity to ask questions that might possibly get lost in the shuffle at a regular Board meeting.

The social hour before dinner is served gives everyone a chance to relax and enjoy time together without the rigors of club business being involved. However, after the food has disappeared is when the fun really begins.

"Two Frogs on Horseback", a husband/wife disc jockey team, has become a regular attraction at these installation dinners. Music spanning the generations is played throughout Envision a group of adults acting like four-year-olds playing follow the leader and you have the Mustang Dance.

No, this is not a holdup in progress. It's merely another variation on the Mustang Dance theme.

the evening and dancing is encouraged. In fact, sometimes it is demanded.

Take for instance the traditional Mustang Dance. This dance involves everyone standing in a circle while the moves are called out. Folks, this little routine is just about as close to an aerobic workout as you can get without putting on your athletic shoes. Participants are required to flap their arms, use "talking hands", swing the hips -- well, you probably get the idea. And all of this must be done in sequence as the pace constantly increases.

The Hokey Pokey, a much more sedate dance, is also a must-do. And there is always a rousing session of musical chairs. But make sure your insurance is up to date; this little game can get downright serious at times.

By evening's end, the calorie-laden meal consumed a few hours earlier is but a pleasant memory.

These dinners are open to all MCA members in good standing. It's a great opportunity to meet your officers and directors in a non-business, non-show atmosphere. Information is always published in this magazine in advance of the event. January 1999 will be here before you know it. Aren't you just a little curious about the Mustang Dance? MT

Before undertaking the rigors of musical chairs, it's best to make sure your health insurance is paid up.
