

Jack had the monster (aka: Mustang GT)

at the world's longest red light. And he was putting every watt in that MACH 460 sound system to very good use.

That's when Jack saw him:

an eager trooper, sitting in his squad car.

Waiting. Their eyes met.

The trooper's hand twitched over his holstered radar gun.

When the light finally changed,

Jack eased the monster's V-8

into "slow cruise," just so Smokey could take one last, long look.

After all, why try to inspire "fear" or "respect" when "envy" is perfectly legal?
