As the man who introduced what is arguably the most significant sports car in history, Carroll Shelby revved-up the world with his V-8 Cobra. His racing history is legendary, from the 1959 LeMans win driving an Aston Martin to capturing the World Manufacturer's Championship in 1965 with the Cobra Daytona Coupe. He has built cars with each of Detroit's Big Three automakers and was instrumental in Ford's LeMans winning GT40 achievement in the '60s. In more recent years, he founded a charity to help needy children receive organ transplants. Carroll Shelby's accomplishments command respect from the enthusiast and anyone connected with the industry worldwide.
