

Some members of Congress are big fans of hot cars and trucks, and racing. Some representatives have joined the Congressional Automotive Performance and Motorsports Caucus. Formed in 1996 to recognize the contributions of the automotive performance and motorsports industry, this honorary Congressional Caucus has 91 members. It pays tribute to the quality, performance, and safety of all motor vehicles and to America's love affair with cars and motorsports.

Just by the nature of its existence, the Caucus is already raising the industry's profile on Capitol Hill and in the eyes of the public. The Caucus does not seek to reach a consensus on legislative issues.

Is your legislator a member of the Caucus? Check out the list of members to find out.
