

This '73 coupe was bought new in 1973 by Craig Cuslidge of Stockton, California. This 351-C powered pony went for $3950.

Buck Helton is proud owner of this 1965 "Show and Go" convertible. Buck and son-in-law, Ron Rogers spent almost three years restoring this beauty, and included in the restoration a new 289-2V, 4-speed, power top, console, and styled steel wheels.

One of the more rare Mustangs seems to be the 1969 convertible. This fine example is owned by F. Pellettini of Westbury, New York.

Robert Hanlon modified his 1964½ coupe with a blue-printed Boss 302, 351 heads, four wheel disc brakes, Carbeau GT seats, Koni shocks, front and rear sway bars, Maier body parts, and all of the available Shelby parts. This pony has the run of Paoli, Pennsylvania.
